VOICE OF THE EDITOR

One Step Closer to Online Sales Tax Requirement

Are we getting closer to the day when online retailers will be required to collect and remit sales tax to the state where a customer resides? This battle has been waged for more than a decade and it's not over yet. Now, Congress is considering the Marketplace Fairness Act, which would open the gateways for states to collect sales tax from online buyers. Affected would be retailers with over $1 million in remote sales, and the nexus requirement of physical presence in a state would no longer be applicable.
