VOICE OF THE EDITOR

Taxes, Twitter, Pivot Tables

Hey, it's Tax Wednesday and judging by Twitter, I think I'm the only person who managed to avoid the State of the Union last night. It's my understanding that taxes were mentioned. Anyway, let's avoid going down that road because, obviously.

BUT SPEAKING OF TWITTER, it'd be worth your while to follow AccountingWEB, if you're into brief updates and whatnot. And while you're at it, following people like our very own Jason Bramwell and even yours truly if you can stand the excitement that will bring to your life.

Of course there are plenty of great tax folks on Twitter too like Joe Kristan, Tony Nitti, and Tax Analysts just to name a few.

Excel wizard David Ringstrom is on there, too, and OH BY THE WAY have you signed up for the free 1-hour webinar on pivot tables that's tomorrow at 2 pm eastern time?

No? Okay, then you have your to-do list: 1) Get on Twitter, follow people; 2) Sign up to learn about pivot tables. 3) Avoid the #SOTU hashtag.

That sounds like the makings for a great Wednesday.
